I'm using a model form with FileField and MediaField I've read through these posts: and the official Django docs, and the Django book. They all point me in the right direction. Shares in Sky plc (LON:SKY) have gotten a fresh boost following the British pay TV operator's 12.5 percent lift to 39.5p in late trading after the company benefited from an offer from Terra Firma Capital Partners Ltd. (LON:TF) to buy its interest in the company at £8 a share. "We have begun an offer to buy out Sky's minority shareholder, Terra Firma Capital Partners (TFSP), at £8 a share," Terra Firma Chief Executive Louis Cognard said on a call to discuss the company's results. According to Cognard, Sky is a "very healthy business" with declining subscriber losses and "very strong cash flow" while long-term growth looks solid. And while Terra Firma is currently treating Sky as a takeover target, it's not aiming to make a "fire sale," Cognard said. In fact, the group is looking to buy in. "Terra Firma understands Sky, its strategy and its culture and we hope to have a constructive relationship," he said. Sky shares surged to £4.15 in Friday's late trading, up 15.4 percent on the day. The stock has been up just over 20 percent in 2014 as it has made bold moves to upgrade its product line-up. Earlier this month Sky announced its Sky Q box will come with a 4K HDR ready TV in addition to a 4K-ready box. It's also hoping to launch in the U.S. and Brazil on time and at its current price of £49 a month. Sky is also adding more channels on pay-TV subscriptions, with its new deal with Premiere Media giving it access to 90 U.K. premium-TV channels and 50 more U.K. entertainment channels by the end of March. Terra Firma is also upgrading Sky's direct-to-consumer offering, which it calls Sports and Entertainment, its newest product that launched in September. The addition of channels like The Golf Channel, Eurosport, and Discovery' Eurosport 2, as well as the ability to stream live sports online, has been a success. "We delivered strong cash flow of £780 million in the quarter and an income, before tax, of £287 million, giving us our strongest cash position ever as a group," Cognard said in a statement. On the call, Cognard also added that he's been looking into
