Secretory immunoglobulin A (IgA) has been implicated in the defense against microorganisms in the mucosal immune system. Secretory IgA (sIgA) is produced by mucosal B cells in the lamina propria of the gut and in the lumen of the respiratory tract. Pertussis toxin (PTX) is an ADPribosyltransferase which is an active component of the Bordetella pertussis bacterium. PTX has been shown to inhibit lymphocyte function in vitro. The purpose of this study was to determine if PTX could inhibit sIgA production in vivo in rats. The ability of PTX to inhibit sIgA in the respiratory tract and the gut was tested. Rats were given a single intraperitoneal injection of PTX or control vehicle. Four hours after PTX or control injection, animals were orally gavaged with heat killed Bordetella pertussis. After 48 hours, bronchoalveolar lavage fluid was collected and IgA was measured by ELISA. Similarly, intestinal lavage was collected and measured. Levels of sIgA in both intestinal lavage and bronchoalveolar lavage fluid were significantly lower in rats which were given PTX. This study demonstrates that PTX can impair s ca3bfb1094

More than 100 bills could be introduced in the US Senate during the two-year budget process that begins today, according to political website Politico. It is currently unclear how long it will take to pass these bills – because they will have to be reconciled with versions passed by the House of Representatives. But it is expected that the bills will be discussed at a hearing of the Senate Budget Committee, chaired by Senator Jeff Sessions, a prominent opponent of gay rights and civil rights for LGBT people. One of the first hearings will be on a report by the Congressional Research Service (CRS) entitled 'Recent Changes in Federal Policy toward Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Americans'. The report says that the Federal Bureau of Prisons has banned inmates who are gay or bisexual from having conjugal visits. Two years ago, the Obama Administration issued a directive to federal prisons to change the law so that gay and bisexual prisoners are not allowed to have conjugal visits. The new order means that all federal prisons that are being privatised are now
