The story of the greatest tease in UFC history -- Mark Coleman's minute-long dance with Tito Ortiz before his UFC 88 loss to "Suga" -- is complete. Or, rather, kind of. Markus "The Handsome Devil" Bekker, who choreographed the entirety of Coleman's famed salsa dance that has become part of MMA lore, has released a prologue to the story of Coleman's epic fail in Las Vegas for Bellator Fighting Championships in late 2012. Bekker's prologue can be seen below: In the prologue, Bekker, who has offered commentary for various Bellator events, has Coleman dance down the Octagon a few times before unleashing his famous dance-off with Ortiz, the UFC champ who was the subject of Bekker's prologue, five years earlier at UFC 83. Coleman dominated Ortiz at UFC 83, winning a unanimous decision and picking up the Performance of the Night bonus for his efforts. Coleman (35-6) lost to Ortiz by second-round TKO in his second UFC outing, a loss that turned him into a tease for all of MMA. The story of the Mark Coleman and Tito Ortiz dance will now finally be complete. Coleman, a former UFC heavyweight champion, was at the card in Las Vegas on Saturday night as the main card opener. He won a decision over Chael Sonnen in the UFC's third
