version of Windows NT/2000 to the new Windows 2000/XP....It has been reported in the above-cited article that Peter Mueller, MD, PhD, University of Wisconsin and Robert Fassnacht, MD, University of Utah have expressed their disagreement with the findings of the Endocrine Society's "Task Force on Clinical Practice Guidelines for the Management of Polycystic Ovary Syndrome." Both members of the Task Force believe that the new guidelines, which emphasize individualized, less-expensive, and less-invasive treatment, do not accurately reflect the data on the cost and efficacy of treatment modalities. They believe that in terms of health economics, the new guidelines are akin to the original guidelines from the previous edition of the Guidelines. The original guidelines from the previous edition were updated after it was found that these guidelines were not supported by the evidence-based, peer-reviewed literature. The authors wish to clarify that the guidelines endorse screening for polycystic ovary syndrome (PCOS) in b7e8fdf5c8

Guduchi: In Vitro
Anti-Salmonella Activity and Metabolism

Study. Guduchi is one of the most well-known herbal plants used worldwide for the treatment of diarrhea. Its active components are constitutionally recognized by the World Health Organization as quality markers of this medicinal plant. Guduchi is composed of three flavonoids, namely norwogonin, oroxylin A, and guduciferin, and two triterpenes, namely friedelin and lupeol. The aims of this study were to develop in vitro antimicrobial assays for evaluating the anti-Salmonella potential of guduchi herbal extract, its single constituents (norwogonin, oroxylin A, guduciferin and friedelin), and its combination. Using this approach, we found that guduciferin and norwogonin had the strongest antimicrobial activity. Moreover, this study has shown that these flavonoids are unable to be metabolized by human liver microsomes. When investigating the metabolism of the constituents, we found that oroxylin A was not metabolized by human liver microsomes whereas norwogonin was metabolized very slowly, which could be attributed to the respective parent structure. The lowest IC50 was obtained with guduciferin, which may be explained by its higher stability. This study shows that these in vitro assays in combination with drug metabolism assays are valuable tools to evaluate the anti-*Salmonella* potential of guduchi, and their constituent compounds, as well as their combination, and could provide useful information for future in vivo studies. The goal of the proposed experiments is to probe the synaptic signaling pathways that regulate the postsynaptic placement and formation of functional synapses on the dendritic arbor of individual cells.
